Drug Abuse Program Coming To Fort Myers

Art Barker, president of The Seed Youth Drug Abuse Rehabilitation Program, currently operating in Broward, Dade, and Pinellas Counties, said today that he will open another Seed facility in Fort Myers within 60 days, and in two other Florida cities in the very near future.

Paving the way for this expansion program was a letter received recently by Barker from Frank Nelson, director of the State Drug Abuse Program in Tallahassee, in which Nelson conveyed the state's recognition and support for Barker's efforts and techniques used in his Seed program.

In his correspondence to Barker the State Drug Abuse Director stated, "We have long felt the strictly traditional approaches dealing with drug problems are in the main inappropriate. The Seed philosophy, which successfully incorporates the efforts of young people, parents and professionals working together to help clients become drug free, is in our opinion, an effective approach."

"I was delighted to receive this letter," Barker said, "and we look forward to working in close cooperation with Mr. Nelson and the State of Florida in respect to the continuation and expansion of The Seed program."
